

Investment Objective Achieving long term capital growth in real terms and steadily increasing income. Our aim is to achieve a higher rate of total return than the FTSE Actuaries All-Share Index Total Return through investing in a diversified portfolio of stocks.

Fund Managers' Comments

In July the Trust's net asset value (cum income, with debt at fair value) rose 4.0%, outperforming the FTSE All-Share benchmark which rose 3.1%. Within this it was a strong month for medium and smaller companies, with the FTSE 250 index, for example, rising 6.7%. We think there were a few reasons for this strength. The general election provided certainty around the UK political backdrop, potentially removing an overhang on domestic equities, while from an inflation perspective there was a second consecutive month of inflation hitting the Bank of England's 2% target, paving the way for an interest rate cut.

We had been gradually positioning the portfolio towards small and medium sized UK companies, on the view that this was the area where valuations were lowest and sentiment weakest, and we are encouraged to see some progress in the area (albeit this is over a very short time horizon). From a stock specific perspective, the best performers during the month tended to be those most exposed to the domestic economy, such as retailer Marks & Spencer, contractor Kier and building materials companies Istock and Marshalls. The biggest individual detractor was an underweight position relative to the FTSE All-Share benchmark in Unilever (which we hold, but as a small holding compared to a large index weight). This has demonstrated solid progress in its operational turnaround under a new management team. During the month we added to a number of existing holdings including gene sequencer Oxford Nanopore and retailers Sainsbury and Kingfisher.

Company specific risks

- This trust is suitable to be used as one component in several in a diversified investment portfolio. Circa 20 per cent. of the net asset value (NAV) of the trust's portfolio is an investment in an independent professional service company. Investors should consider carefully the proportion of their portfolio invested into this trust.
- Active management techniques that have worked well in normal market conditions could prove ineffective or detrimental at other times.
- The trust could lose money if a counterparty with which it trades becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations to the trust.
- Shares can lose value rapidly, and typically involve higher risks than bonds or money market instruments. The value of your investment may fall as a result.
- The return on your investment is directly related to the prevailing market price of the trust's shares, which will trade at a varying discount (or premium) relative to the value of the underlying assets of the trust. As a result losses (or gains) may be higher or lower than those of the trust's assets.
- The trust holds an investment in the IPS business which are wholly owned subsidiaries and private shares.
- If a trust's portfolio is concentrated towards a particular country or geographical region, the investment carries greater risk than a portfolio diversified across more countries.
- The trust may use gearing as part of its investment strategy. If the trust utilises its ability to gear, the profits and losses incurred by the trust can be greater than those of a trust that does not use gearing.
